Coexisting with Wildlife

About this course

Our Coexisting with Wildlife course takes you into the heart of one of wildlife management's biggest challenges. Wildlife-related issues are becoming increasingly frequent, particularly where people and wild animals coexist. But living alongside wildlife doesn't have to mean damage or danger. This course examines the root causes of conflict, explores ethical decision-making, and provides practical strategies for achieving peaceful coexistence. It draws on examples and approaches from around the world, making it relevant for students, staff, and organisations working in wildlife areas globally.

From deterrents and land-use planning to behaviour insights and local solutions, it offers tools for safer, smarter interactions with wildlife. You'll also learn about legal responsibilities, education approaches, and long-term cooperation. Whether you're guiding guests, managing land, or working with communities, this course helps you respond with clarity, care, and confidence. It's not about controlling wildlife. It's about learning to live with it.
